DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments with respect to rejected claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 6-11 and 13-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by United States Patent Number 6,781,022 to Xu.

Xu discloses in figures 6, 16A-B, and 19A-B, an optical add/drop module for adding or dropping one or more channels from a wavelength division multiplexed (WDM) signal, the optical add/drop module comprising:

- A drop portion comprising a plurality of thin film filters, wherein each thin film filter drops a particular channel from a WDM signal;
- An add portion that adds channels of the WDM signal dropped by the drop portion back to the WDM signal, wherein the add portion comprises:
  - A first stage of interleavers (Mach-Zehnder interferometers), wherein each interleaver in the first stage is a fused-fiber interleaver; and

Art Unit: 2883

- A final stage including a thin film interleaver, wherein the thin film interleaver has a flat-top frequency response (column 12, lines 9-26).

As to claims 7-8, an add/drop module with a thin-film interferometer would inherently be able to add or drop particular channels.

As to claim 9, light is reflected and transmitted in multiple vectors.

As to claim 10, multiple channels are used.

As to claim 11, flat-top frequency response is optimized.

As to claim 13, channel isolation and suppressed crosstalk is achieved.

As to claim 14, optical spacers are used to construct the WDM interleaver.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 15-21, and 23-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Xu as applied to claims above, and further in view of applicant's disclosure of prior art.

Xu discloses a thin film based add/drop optical module using interleavers, but fails to explicitly disclose the method of Coarse Wavelength Division Multiplexing (CWDM).

Applicant discloses in the background of the invention that WDM, DWDM and CWDM are commonly used in the art of multiplexing in order to increase bandwidth using multiple interleavers.

Art Unit: 2883

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to configure the WDM of Xu to allow for use with a CWDM signal disclosed by applicant as a matter of obvious design choice based on its intended use and to increase bandwidth for the module of Xu.
